

NEW TURKISH AMBASSADOR

HUSSEIN KIAZIM BEY.
(Copyright by Clinedinst.)

TURKEY A NEW NATION

Ambassador Hussein Bey
Tells of Change.

ONE UNITED PEOPLE NOW

Peace and Progress the Motto of All Under Constitution.

THE SULTAN A HAPPY RULER

Differences Swept Away Between Mohammedan, Christian and Jew.
Foreign Enterprise Welcomed.

"Work, peace and progress." That is the motto of the new Turkey, according to the message that Hussein Kiazim Bey, first Turkish ambassador to the United States and first envoy of a constitutional Ottoman empire to this country, brings to the United States.

Enthusiastic over the changes which have given his country a constitutional form of government within the last year, the new ambassador will endeavor to convince the United States that his nation has entered into a new era that will be permanent and make of his land one of the most prosperous on the face of the earth.

A short, thick-set man of fifty, he is distinguished by his energetic manner. His pointed black beard gives his open countenance an impression of determination, which is emphasized, when he talks, by frequent gestures. He cannot speak English, except to say that he "must set to work to learn your language," or to assure his caller that he is "pleased to find myself in your land of energy and accomplishments and to be the first ambassador of my country to it."

One United Nation.

"The people in Turkey were so ready for a constitutional form of government that the ease with which they procured it has possibly astonished the world," stated Kiazim Bey through an interpreter.

It is that the political and religious differences between Greek and Bulgarian, Armenian and Jew, Christian and Mohammedan were swept away and we have today a united, happy nation, looking forward toward the end of accomplishing peace and prosperity," he continued.

He predicted that the harmony which has existed among the various classes in Turkey since the granting of the constitution and the opening of parliament would be permanent. "For all find in the constitution a guarantee of their rights," he explained. "They find in the constitution just what they have been fighting and contending for."

He instructed the interpreter to say that there was no contest of parties in Turkey today. "For all find in the constitution a guarantee of their rights," he explained. "They find in the constitution just what they have been fighting and contending for."

The Sultan a Happy Monarch.

"One of the happiest persons in the whole empire today is his imperial majesty, Abdul Hamid Kaim II, according to the ambassador. Surrounded by a clique, that kept barriers between Abdul Hamid and his people, his reign had been one of dread and misgivings.

"Now things have changed," said Kiazim Bey. "Why, the sultan, himself—and here upon his chair—crossed the whole city in view of his people to open parliament. And to show that it was his desire that no misunderstanding might arise between himself and his people he not only invited the whole membership of parliament, consisting of about 300, to the palace to dine, but also mingled with his guests in a most democratic and unusual manner."

He added that there was now a constant interchange of views between the throne and the people.

the ambassador let it be understood that his government would see to it that its resources were protected. A code of laws he explained, was being drafted to regulate such matters, so as to insure honest returns to capital invested and to preserve to the country its wealth.

The new ambassador is an experienced diplomat, having been for thirteen years minister to Roumania. He has been in the Turkish diplomatic service for twenty years. He has headed a number of political missions to several European countries, including Russia, Austria and England.

His credentials will be presented to the President in a few days. An embassy will be opened in Washington soon, the old quarters of the legation having been abandoned.

Turkey Rejects Austrian Proposal.
CONSTANTINOPLE, January 11.—According to the Ikdam the council of ministers yesterday decided to reject the Austrian proposal to give the port of 22,500,000 Turkish Lira (250,000) as indemnity for the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

ROYAL ROW IN SERBIA.

Crown Prince Forces Himself Upon Cabinet Meeting, Upbraids King.
Special Cablegram to The Star.

VIENNA, January 11.—Another painful scene has occurred between King Peter of Serbia and his son, the Crown Prince George. The crown prince entered a room in which a meeting of the cabinet was being held on Sunday, although he had not been invited. When the king arrived he asked his son to withdraw, but the crown prince refused, and declared with heat, "I am the future king, and have a right to be here. I must know what happens, and so shall take part in the council."

King Peter insisted that the prince should leave, but without success, and a violent altercation ensued, during which the ministers left the room, leaving the king and his rebellious son together.

PUT THE BLAME ON MOTHER.

Three French Boys Murderously Attack Two Elderly Women.
Special Cablegram to The Star.

PARIS, January 11.—A terrible crime has been committed at the village of Didiereau-Beaujeu, near Lyons. Three brothers named Terrier, aged fourteen, thirteen and ten respectively, armed with heavy sticks, went to a neighboring house, occupied by two elderly maiden ladies, who were reputed to be wealthy. The three boys made a murderous attack upon the two women, leaving them for dead. Then they ransacked the house and carried off what valuables they could find.

It is doubtful if the victims will recover. On being arrested the boys tearfully admitted their guilt, and accused their mother of being the instigator of the crime. She, too, has been arrested.

STUDY PHYSICAL CULTURE.

First School of Kind Opened at Stamboul—Girls Admitted.
Special Cablegram to The Star.

CONSTANTINOPLE, January 11.—Recently there took place the inauguration of the school of physical culture at Stamboul, of which the director is Maj. Selim Sirri Bey. Prince Sebah ed Din delivered a speech, in the course of which he said that man must rely not on the government, but on himself. Physical culture developed self-reliance, and he cited the examples of the Greeks and Romans in ancient days and of the English in modern times.

The latter's physical culture, he pointed out, enabled them to colonize half the world. This afforded an example for Turkey. He declared that the future depended on the practice of all culture that tended to develop self-confidence and personal value of the citizen individually. An interesting boxing match followed. This is the first Turkish school for physical culture, and it is noteworthy that girls are also admitted.

ORANGE CAUSES FATALITY.

Boy Falls From Window and Breaks Neck of Another Child.
Special Cablegram to The Star.

PARIS, January 11.—A boy of fourteen was peeling an orange at the window of his parents' flat on the first floor of a house in the center of Paris the other morning when the orange slipped out of his hand. In trying to save it he fell out of the window, crashed through a glass marquee in front of the house, and broke the neck of another child who was passing. The boy rose and picked up the orange, but died of internal injuries shortly afterward.

Catholic Missionary Dies.

NEW YORK, January 11.—Rev. William Devereaux Hughes of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Paul the Apostle, is dead at the rectory of the Paulist Fathers in this city. Father Hughes was born in New York in 1838. He was well known throughout the United States as a missionary and for many years was manager of the Catholic World.
